

Stroke

When Your Brain Says Goodbye to the League

First: Definition and Causes

A stroke is basically your brain's way of saying I'm tired of your lifestyle, I'm going on strike. It's a civil war between your arteries and your bad decisions.

1. The Ischemic The Traffic Jam A tiny blood clot decides to play Gandalf in your artery. You Shall Not Pass. No oxygen gets through and your brain cells start dying faster than secondary characters in a horror movie.
2. The Hemorrhagic The Pipe Burst Your blood vessel gets a mid-life crisis and explodes. It's like a burst sewer pipe in the middle of a fancy gala, everything is ruined and everyone is screaming.
